Next Chapter Book Club

The NCBC was established in 2002 by The Ohio State University Nisonger Center to provide adolescents and adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities a chance to be a part of a group activity that includes both fun and learning. It provides members with an opportunity to build social connections within a public coffee house-type setting. The members will experience the enrichment and growth that comes from interacting with books and fellow readers.

The club will meet one hour per week until the book is completed. This generally takes 12 – 14 weeks. Books are chosen based on their popularity and readability among the group members. The members will read and discuss the book during the meeting.
